Instructions:

1. Cut your foam board to a rectangle shape - big enough to fit the notepaper and leaving extra space for all the decorations.
2. Stick your scalloped edge Sassafras paper to the foam board so that the scalloped edge sits over the edge of the foam board. Cut around your board.

3. Cut a square of the yellow polkadot paper (the reverse of the scalloped edge) and stick towards the left side of the board.
4. Cut a strip of the blue cardstock and stick across the board so that it sits slightly indented from the left hand side.
5. Stick a 'b' at the beginning of the blue strip and draw out the other letters of 'birthdays' (You could use a stamp or stickers for the other letters instead if you wish).

6. Stick the arrow on the left of the board and using your pen draw an outline to make it stand out.

7. Choose a selection of the Sassafras stickers to use on your board. Stick some to the orange and blue cardstock - cut them out to leave a border. Stick these and some other stickers without cardstock to the right side of your board as shown. I have chosen to use sticky foam pads to raise the cloud sticker to give it a bit more dimension.

8. Choose 3 more stickers and back them onto cardstock. Cut them out and stick them together - overlapping slightly. Punch a hole in the top right and bottom left of these so that you can thread ribbon through them.

9. Punch 2 holes in the top of your board, tie the ribbon to create a hanger, threading the shapes onto the ribbon as shown. I have tied a double bow in the bottom of each side.

10. Write each month onto a separate note card and attach them to the board using the bulldog clip.

This board is perfect for hanging by your desk or on your fridge - somewhere you will be reminded of all the birthday coming up in the following months.
